FOREWARD

These Thirty three swaiyas give the gist of the teachings of Guru Govind Singh, the tenth and last Guru of the Sikhs. In the first Swaiya he defines a "pure khalsa". He, who fixes his thought on the Supreme Reality day and night and does not turn his mind to any thing else except the One; who is full of love and faith and does not put his trust in fasts and does not worship tombs hermit-cells or crematoriums; whose place of pilgrimage charity, compassion, austerity and self control consist of devotion to the One, and whose mind is resplendent with the Ever-Shining Light, is to be called a pure khalsa". In the next ten Swaiyas he describes the attributes of the Godhead whom his sikhs ought to worship. Then the futility of worshiping various gods and goddesses and the so-called incarnations of God is set forth. In Swaiyas 18th and 19th he enjoins sincerity and in the next Swaiyas discards idol-worship and goes on explaining that the gods whose images men worship were themselves subject to death (23,24). Then he subjects to scathing criticism formal and ceremonial worship and exposes the tactics of sectarian leaders, who care more for self-aggrandisement than for spreading true religious spirit.

In the end he reminds man that he is morally responsible for his deeds and will have to bear their consequences himself alone. His dear friends and near relations for whose sake he commits inequities, will not accompany him when the soul departs from the body.

TRANSLATION.

1. Day and night he meditateth on the Ever-radiant Light, and giveth not even a moment's thought (to anything else) except the one Lord ;

Adorneth himself with perfect Love and Faith and putteth not his trust in fasts, tombs, crematoriums and hermit-cells even by mistake.

In pilgrimages, in charities, in acts of mercy, in austerities, and in self-restraints knoweth none save Him.

When full light shineth within him, then a man may be deemed a pure Khalsa.

2. His existence is eternal, His laws endure. He is from the beginning, but Himself without a beginning. He is unfathomable and unconquerable.

His bounty, mercy, self-control, self-restraint, laws, vow of celibacy, and excellent vow of goodness never fail.

He is primeval, of no colour, without beginning, without end, self-begotten, boundless, without jealousy and without fear.

His form is formlessness. He hath no lines, is unaffected by old age, is merciful to the lowly and is all-kindness.

3. Thou art the first cause. Thou art without jealousy, without any garb, O Great Master ! Thou existest for ever and art the Kindler of Light.

Thou art immanent in every form, absorbed in the contemplation of the reality, O Destroyer of Births !

In the beginning, before the eons began, (nay even) before the creation, Thou wast present everywhere, O All-pervading Lord !

Thou art merciful to the humble, abode of kindness, all-compassion Thou art from the beginning, unbegotten, unconquerable and indestructible.

4. He is primeval, indivisible, perfect and eternal master. His mysteries the Vedas and the Books have not been able to reveal.

He is kind to the humble, benevolent, a treasure of mercy, and everlasting. He pervades every form.

His depths, Shesha, Indra, Gnesha, Shiva and Brahma have been unable to fathom even after constant sounding.

O Foolish mind ! why hast thou forgotten the manifest master.

5. He is immovable, from the beginning, of no colour, everlasting. His existence has been said to be eternal.

He is primeval, cometh not into the womb and was not born. He is devoid of old age, holiest of holies and hath been believed in from eternity.

His miracles, begotten of himself, are known to the whole world. He is one but dwelleth in many places.

Oh ! poor mind ! why dost thou not know the Lord, who is free from all defects.

6. Thou art imperishable. Thou art primeval.
Thou art without colour. Thou knowest no death. Thou existest for ever. O Almighty !

Thou givest food to all living beings in the water or on the land.

The Holy books of the Hindus and the Mohammadans both ponder over Thee
in various ways

Nothing else lasts in this world, O ! Holy one ! Greatest of all !

7. Thou hast been recognised as primeval unfathomable, perfect, undivided, indescribable, unconquerable and undying.

Thou wast in the past, thou art in the present, and thou shalt be in the future.
All call thee omnipresent.

The gods and the demons, Vishnu, Narad and Saraswati all name thee eternal.

The Puranas and the Quoran are unable to unravel any secret of the All-merciful.

who is an ocean of kindness and who is compassionate to the lowly.

8. Thou ! O Eternal Being ! O Master of everlasting laws ! Thou hast caused the Vedas and the Books to grow.
He Himself sustained in the past and sustains in the present the gods, the demons and the spirits of the mountains.
Thou art from the beginning, wast before the eons commenced Thou art colourless and undying. Thy light is seen, O Invisible one !
O ignorant mind ! the master is so manifest. Who hath told thee of any other ?
9. The gods, the demons of the mountains, the inhabitants of the nether world and the most renowned Sidhs all undergo various penances (to attain to Him.),
The Vedas, the Puranas and the Quoran are tired of singing His attributes.
He cannot be comprehended.
He knows the hearts of the inhabitants of this world, of the heavens, of the nether regions, of the four quarters and of the four corners.
His glory is enveloping the whole earth
Why, O mind ! dost thou tell me of any other ?
10. The Vedas and the Books are unable to explain His secrets. The Sidhs are tired of their meditations.

The Smrities, the Shastras, the Vedas and the Puranas treat of Him in various ways, but the story of the Primeval Being, who is without beginning, cannot be fully known. He saved Dhru, Ajamal and Prahlad.

His Name - the Name which saved the Prostitute—is the basis of all my deliberations.

11. All have admitted Him as existing from the beginning, but Himself without a beginning, unfathomable, the eternal master and of immortal beauty.

Of whom the Ghandharvas, the inhabitants of the nether world, of the earth, of the skies and of the four quarters have knowledge.

Whom, this world and the others, the four quarters and the four corners, the gods and the demons recognise as their Master.

O ignorant mind ! under whose influence hast thou forgotten the All-wise and the Self-begotten.

12. Some firmly believe in the images of Vishnu, others call Shiva their lord.
Some consider His abode to be a temple, others fix His residence in a mosque.
Some call him Rama, some Krishna, other identify him in their minds with other incarnations.

Abandoning all these barren ways, I believe the Creator only to be the author of all beings.

13. If you say that Rama is unborn and invincible, why was he born of Kaushalia's womb then ?

Why was he, whom you call dark-coloured Krishna, defeated by Kal-yaman.

You call Him all-goodness and without enmity. Why did then Krishna drive the chariot of Arjuna ?

Recognise Him only as your Master, whose mysteries none has been able to unravel or will be able to expound.

14. How do you identify Krishna with the All-merciful ? Why did the sportsman shoot him with an arrow ?

Why did he, who saves the families of others, had his own family destroyed ?.

you call him primeval and unborn, why did Krishna come into the womb of Devki ?.

It is said that he hath no father or mother, why then Vasudev be termed his Father ?.

15. Why do you call Shiva your lord ? why do you term Brahma your Master.?

The lord of the Raghvas, the Master of the Yadvas and the husband of Ramma, whom you consider as lords of the universe are (in reality) not so.

Sukhdev, Prashar and Vyas, who discarded the one God and worshipped many, have been duped.

These ways are unprofitable. I believe in one God who (manifests himself) in manifold ways.

- 16. Some believe in Brahma, others call Shiva their lord.

Some regard Vishnu as the lord of the universe and say that by worshipping him all sorrow vanishes.

Consider it over and over again, O dullard ! in the end all these gods will forsake thee.

In the mind make room for Him only who was, now is and in future will be.

- 17. He created millions of Indras, made and destroyed millions of Upindras.

The demons, the gods, the serpent, the mountains, the birds and the beasts are beyond reckoning.

Shiva and Bhrama have been undergoing austerities up to the present time and have not been able to fathom his depths.

The Vedas and the Four Books are unable to pry into His secrets. My Guru has told me to worship Him.

- 18. By thy show of meditation, by growing matted locks on thy head and long nails on thy fingers, thou didst succeed in deceiving others.

Rubbing ashes on thy face, thou didst roam (hither and thither) and couldst cheat the gods and the demons even.

Entangled in the net of avarice, thou didst wander from house to house and didst not practice the resignation of a Yogin.

Thou didst lose thy self respect, but didst not attain to thy end. Without love no one can reach God.

19. Why dost thou hanker after appearance?
O Foolish mind! by false show thou dost lose thine own self-respect.

Why dost thou cheat others? By doing so thou art dishonoured here and wilt gain no place hereafter.

Where the All-merciful dwells, there no room shall be allotted to thee.

O unthinking man! consider it over and over again, "by merely donning a garb thou shalt not attain unto the Indescribable."

20. Why dost thou worship stones. A stone cannot contain the Lord.

Worship him only as thy master, by worshipping whom all pains are assuaged.

All obstacles, in the form of bodily or mental ailments shall fade away, when thou repeatest His Name.

Meditation on Him only is acceptable;
these unprofitable deeds end in no gain.

21. If thou didst waste thousands of eons in the worship of stones, the unprofitable deed would bring thee no gain.

How couldst thou attain to success by the worship of stones Thy power is diminished, thy progress retarded and thou hast not obtained the Nine treasures.

Day by day time flies on, and thou hast not achieved thy object, Art not thou ashamed of it ?

Thou dullard ! Thou didst not remember the Almighty and in these deeds thou didst waste thy whole life.

22. For an eon thou mayest worship a stone it will not gladden thy heart.

The image will not confer any boon upon thee, with its arms uplifted in a gracious, manner, O dullard !

Say, how didst thou come to repose thy trust in it ; it never helped thee in trouble.

Know, foolhardly person ! know, this barren path is of ignorance. Thou shalt lose.

23. All were caught in the meshes of death
No incarnation or prophet could save himself.

The gods, the demons, the serpents and the mountains were created and destroyed in the past and will be created and destroyed in the future.

Those, who had themselves called the incarnations of the Deity, on this very earth died broken-hearted in the end.

O unstable mind ! why dost thou not bow to the feet of the Destroyer alone.

24. Conditioned by time came Brahma and taking a staff and a cowl roamed on the earth

Conditioned by time came Shiva and wandered from country to country.
We know this also.

Conditioned by time came into being the whole creation and passed away. Hence all men came to know Him.

Abandoning all the mysteries of the Vedas and the Books I acknowledge the Lord only as the fountain head of all grace.

25. Thou didst waste time in these deeds, unthinking man ! and didst never remember the merciful Lord.

Thou didst banish all feelings of shame
O shameless one ! and leaving thy proper work committed evil deeds, bringing no fruit to thee.

Thou hadst beautiful horses and huge elephants, but thou didst resolve to ride an ass.

Thou thoughtless fellow ! Thou didst not worship the Supreme Being and in a regard for the world didst spoil thy end.

26. Thou didst read the Vedas and the Books for many days, but didst not understand their real import.

Thou didst roam hither and thither worshipping one god after another, but didst never fix thy heart on the One.

Thou didst prostrate thyself before the idols and the shrines, but didst gain nothing.

Why leaving the master so manifest, O foolish mind ! art thou entangled thine own headstrong fancies ?

27. If one goes to the Yogins, they ask him to repeat the name of Gorakh.

If he turns to the Sanyasins, they advise him to believe firmly that Datta alone is true.

If he goes to the Mohammadans, they forcibly convert him to the religion of the Prophet.

All consider the Lord to be amongst them alone, but none can tell me of His secrets.

28. If one goes to the Yogins, they tell him to offer all his belongings to them.

If he runs to take shelter with the Sanyasins, they ask him to give up all his riches in the name of Datta.

If he begins to serve the Masands, they order him to transfer his property to them at once.

All try 'to take' (from me what I have), but none wants 'to give' me the knowledge of God.

29. If one begins to serve a Masand, then he says "bring to me all thy offerings.

"Whatever of thy riches or property thou hast, go and present them to me at this very moment.

"Day and night think of me alone and never commit the mistake of remembering any other."

When they hear the word 'give', they would fly away even at night, and will never be pleased in the least without getting something.

30. Dropping oil in their eyes, they show the people a flood of tears.

When they know their disciple to be a rich man they serve him with dainty dishes.

But if he is poor, he gets nothing for his requests and even they hide their faces when he goes to them.

The beasts are plundering the people. They never sing the praises of the Lord.

31. They close their eyes like a heron, and make a show of meditation to the public.

Like a huntsman they lower their heads,
and by their fixed gaze put the cat
even to shame.

They go wherever there is any hope of getting money. They are dishonoured in this world and have nothing to build upon in the world hereafter.

Oh ! thoughtless creature ! Thou dost not cherish the Lord. Why art thou solely engaged in the worldly things ?

32. Why do you make people practice vain deeds ? These actions will not serve them in any way.

Why do you run after wealth ? You will surely be unable to run away from the angel of death.

There (i.e. before the Lord) none will bear witness in your favour, neither sons, nor wife nor friends, nor companions or disciples.

Bear this in mind, O unthinking brute !
in the end you shall have to go alone.

33. No sooner you leave the body, than your wife will desert you calling you a ghost
Your sons, wife, companions and bosom friends will all cry "make haste to take him out."

The palaces, the treasuries, the lands and the forts will all pass to others as soon as you give up your soul.

Bear this in mind, O unthinking brute !
In the end you shall have to go alone.

NOTES

- Sw. 1. L. 2. Worship of shrines is of no avail.
Perfect love and faith are the only means of salvation.
- L. 3. To appease certain gods men used to give alms and practice certain restraints and austerities. The Khalsa should only know God and do everything to please Him alone.
- L. 4. ਨਖਾਲਸ, Pu. from A خالص = pure. A strange corruption.
- Sw. 2. L. 1. ਦੁਤ੍ਰ < S. ਦੁਤ੍ਰ: > = law
- L. 2. ਸੰਯਮ < S. ਸੰਯਮ > = Self control
There is no ebb and tide of emotion in Him. ਸੰਯਮ = Vow of celibacy. This attribute is brought to dispel the erroneous notion of lust in Him.
- ਨੇਮ (S. ਨਿਯਮ:) = a law, rule or precept. ਦਮ (S. ਦਮ:) = Self-restraint. He never does a thing for which he may feel sorry afterwards.
- ਅਥੇ from (S, ਹਜ਼=to move) means immovable, ਅਨੀਲ, lit, not of blue colour. In old religion God was represented as having a blue form.

L. 3. ਜਰਾਰਨ { S. ਜਰਾ = old age + ਰਾ = toothless + ਨ = not } = lit not toothless by old age i.e. unaffected by old age.

serpent and said to inhabit the Patala."

Apte.

सिद्ध S. An ascetic possessing marvellous powers.

L. 3. दिक् North-East, South-East, North-West and the South-West.

L. 4. The meaning is that why should I think of anything when his glory is so manifest.

Sw. 10. -L. 2. सिद्धि The law-books of Hindus, षष्ठि The six books on philosophy.

वेद The four revealed books.

पुराण, The books of fiction and mythology.

L. 3. ध्रुव "Dhruva is the polar star, but personified in mythology as the son of Uttanapada.

The account of the elevation of an ordinary mortal to the position of the polar star runs thus. Uttanapada had two wives, Suruchi and Suniti, but the latter was disliked by him. Suruchi had a son named Uttama and Suniti gave birth to Dhruva. One day the boy tried, like his elder brother, to take a seat in his father's lap, but he was contemptuously treated both by the King and his wife. The poor child went sobbing to his mother who told him in consolatory terms that fortune and favour were not attainable without hard exertion. At these words the youth left the parental roof, retired to the woods, and, though quite a lad, performed such rigorous austerities that he was at last raised by Vishnu to the position of the polar star."

प्रह्लाद

"According to the Padam puran, he was a Brahman in the previous existence, and when born as son of Hiranya-kasipu, he still retained his ardent devotion to Vishnu. His father of course, did not like that his own son should be such a devout worshipper of his mortal enemies, the gods, and with the object of getting rid of him, he subjected him to a variety of cruelties, but Prahlada by the favour of Vishnu, was quite unscathed, and began to preach with even greater earnestness than before the doctrine that Vishnu filled space and was omnipresent, omniscient, and omnipotent. Hiranya-kasipu in a fit of exasperation asked him 'If Vishnu is omnipresent how do I not see him in the pillar of this hall' ? Where upon Prahlada struck the pillar with his fist (according to another account Hirnya-Kasipu himself angrily kicked the pillar to convince his son of the absurdity of his faith), when Vishnu came out half man and half lion, and tore Hiranya-Kasipu to pieces. Prahlada succeeded his father and reigned wisely and righteously." Apte.

According to the popular account the pillar, from which Vishnu came out, was made red hot by Hiranya-Kasipu, in order to punish Prahlada for his heretical views.

Ajama!—He was a sinful man, who had one of his several sons named Narain. On his death bed he called aloud for him. Such was the strange effect of the Name Narain (which means God) that the angels of death left him and he was taken to swarga by the gods.

The Guru says that though several attempts have been made in revealed books, in philosophy in law-codes and in fiction to give a complete idea of the Deity, but they have failed. For he is unfathomable and none can comprehend Him.

कनिका lit. a prostitute. Here a reference to the particular prostitute in whose house once a Mahatma came by mistake. Taking compassion on her, he told her to tame a parrot. She obeyed him and began to teach the bird the familiar words "Ram Ram." Such was the effect of the Holy Name upon her, that she was absorbed in it and was saved in the end.

Sw. 11. L. 1. शिष्य (S. शिष्य) = immortal मनुष्य Hindi = Beauty.

L. 2. देवदेव (S. देवदेव :) "a class of demi-gods regarded as the singers or musicians of gods."

सखा (S. सखा) the followers of Kubera, the god of wealth. Kubera dwells on the Kailas Mountain.

L. 3. अनेक (S. अनेक) = worlds other than our own.

Sw. 13. The reasoning in this swaiya may be expressed as follows. God is unborn and invincible. Ram Chandra and Krishna are believed to be his incarnations. Ram Chandra was born and hence could not be identified with the unborn. Krishna was defeated and hence could not be the same as the invincible. The doings of the great men contradict the attributes of God and hence they could not be His incarnations.

L. 2. यव for Kalyaman. "A king of Yavanas enemy of Krishna and an invincible foe of the Yadvas. Krishna, finding it impossible to vanquish him on the field of battle, cunningly decoyed him to the cave where Muchakunda was sleeping who burnt him down with his looks " Apte.

L. 3. अर्जु, a name of Arjuna.

Sw. 24. The story referred to is given in Bhagwat Ekadish Skandha Adhyaya I slokas 10-24 and Adhyaya XXX. Once Krishna thought of destroying the Yadvas, and to fulfil that purpose he called some rishis, Vishva Mitra, Durvasa etc., and sent them to Pindark Tirth. Some of the Yadva boys there disguised one of their comrades, named, Samb, as a woman and took him in their playful mood, to the rishis. Representing him as a pregnant girl, they asked the rishis whether she would bring forth a boy or a girl. Being enraged the rishis told them that she would bring forth an iron cudgle, with which their whole race would be destroyed. Being afraid of the curse the boys took the cudgle, which they found on unmasking the boy, to their Raja Ugarsen, who had it ground to dust. A small bit remained, which, with the dust, was thrown into the sea. The dust was carried to the coast by the waves and a kind of reed grew there. The small bit was swallowed by a fish, which along with others was caught by a fisherman. On dissection, he found the sharp iron bit and stuck it to the head of his arrow.

Krishna once remarked to the Raja that Yadvas had grown sinful and hence they must perform a pilgrimage to wash off their sins. Thus they all went to the Prabhasa. After their ablutions, the Yadvas began to drink, and amidst their drunken frolics, misled by the Maya (illusion) of Krishna they began to fight. At first they used swords and arrows and then the sharp reeds sprung from dust of the iron cudgle. The whole race was destroyed there. Krishna, assuming the real form of Vishnu then sat under a Peepal tree. A hunter mistook his lotus feet for the eye of a deer and with the same arrow, whose head was formed of the remaining bit of the cudgle, shot him dead.

Sw. 15. L. 1. सिद्धेः Brahma lit the lord of Brahmans.

L. 2. रामेऽसौ Ramachandra नन्देऽसौ = Krishna.

रामपतिः = husband of Rama i. e. Vishnu.

पराशरः "Name of a celebrated sage father of Vyasa and the author of a smriti."

वज्रसूतः. "He was the son of the sage Parashara by Satyavati, (born before her marriage with Santanu) ; but he retired to the wilderness as soon as he was born and there led the life of a hermit, practising the most rigid austerities until he was called by his mother Satyavati to beget sons on the widows of her son Vichitravirya. He was thus the father of Pandu and Dhritrashtra and also of Vidura. He was at first called Krishnadvaipayana from his dark complexion and from his having been brought forth by Satyavati on a Dvipa or island, but he afterwards came to be called Vyasa or the 'arranger,' as he was supposed to have arranged the vedas in their present form. He is believed to be the author of the great epic, the Mahabharata which he is said to have composed with Ganpati as his scribe. The eighteen Puranas, as also the Brahmasutras and several other works are also ascribed to him. He is one of the seven deathless persons."

Aplc.

प्रवहेद् "He is said to have been born from the seed of Vyasa, which fell at the sight of the heavenly nymph Ghritachi, while roaming over the earth in the form of a female parrot Suka was a born philosopher and by his moral eloquence successfully resisted all the attempts of the nymph Rambha to win him over to the path of love. He is said to have narrated the Bhagwat Puran to king Parikshit."

Apte.

Sw. 17. ईन्द्र Indra, the King of heaven and the god of rain. His most famous weapon is the thunderbolt.

उपिन्द्र Upindra. "Name of Vishnu or Krishna as the younger brother of Indra in his 5th or dwarf incarnation."

Sw. 18. न्यजाम् (S, न्यजाम् :) = resignation, अवगच्छे = Were duped into the belief that thou wast a Yogin.

Sw. 19. L. 3. It means that the doors of mercy are shut on the hypocrites.

Sw. 20. L. 8. अयि (S. अयि :) = mental pain or anguish.

विजायि (S. विजायि :) — sickness, ailment usually physical.

Sw. 21. L. 2. ਨਉਨਿਧਿ — the nine treasures of Kubera the god of wealth. They are :—
 ਮਹਾ ਪਦਮ, ਪਦਮ, ਬੰਖ, ਮਕਰ, ਬਛਪ, ਮੁਕੰਦ, ਕੰਦ, ਨੀਲ, ਖਟਵ.

Sw. 23. L. 2. The gods and the demons etc. were worshiped by the Hindus. The Guru says they are mere creatures, subject to destruction and decay. As to the reality of the gods and the demons it is written elsewhere in the Dāsam Granth.

ਜਾਧ ਕਰਮ ਜਿ ਪੁਰਖੁ ਕਮਾਵੈ ।

ਨਾਮ ਦੇਵਤਾ ਜਗਤ ਕਹਾਵੈ ॥

ਕੁਜਿਤ ਕਰਮਜੇ ਨਗਮਹਿਕਰਹੀ।

ਨਾਮ ਅਸੁਰ ਤਿਨ ਕੋ ਜਗਧਰਹੀ॥

“Those who do good deeds in this world are termed gods.
 Those who commit evil deeds are named demons.”

L. 4. The word ਕਾਲ is Sanskrit and literally it means time. Its Secondary meaning is death.
 In the writings of the 10th
 Guru it means the Destroyer, the Lord himself. Some men do not believe in any God and think time only the cause of all this creation. That the Guru distinguished his God from ਕਾਲ
 (time) is clear from ਨਮਸਤੈ ਅਕਾਲੇ
 (Jap) and such passages as ਕਾਲ ਰਹਤ ਅਨਕਾਲ ਸਰੂਪਾ ॥

ਅਨਕਾਲ ਅਪਾਲ ਇਆਲ ਸੁਅੰ ॥

ਅਕਾਲ ਹੈ ਅਪਾਲ ਹੈ ਖਿਆਲ ਹੈ ਅਖੰਡ ਹੈ in his Akalustat. His ਕਾਲ is the destroyer of time and ਮਰਾ ਕਾਲ even.

ਅਘੋ ਭੰਡਿਓ ਦੁਬਟ ਖੰਡਣਕਾਲ ਹੂੰ ਕੇ ਕਾਲ ॥

ਗੁਯਾਨ ਹੂੰ ਕੋਗਯਾਤਾ ਮਹਾਂ ਚੁੰਧਿਤਾ ਕੇ ਦਾਤਾ
ਦੇਵਕਾਲਹੁਕੇ ਕਾਲ ਮਹਾਂ ਕਾਲਹੁ ਕੇ ਕਾਲ ਹੂੰ ।

(Akalustat)

His ਕਾਲ though limiting everything by time is himself timeless. The following Swaiya in the Bachittar Natak will clear the whole thing.

ਕਾਲ ਹੀ ਪਾਇ ਭਯੋ ਭਗਵਾਨ ਸੁਸਾਗਤ ਜਾਂ
ਜਗ ਜਾ ਕੀ ਕਲਾ ਹੈ। ਕਾਲ ਹੀ ਪਾਇਭਯੋ ਬ੍ਰਹਮਾ ਸਿਵ ਕਾਲ ਹੀ ਪਾਇ ਭਯੋ ਜੁਗੀਆ ਹੈ । ਕਾਲ ਹੀ ਪਾਇ ਸੁਰਾਸਰ ਗੇਧੁਬ ਸਭ ਭੁਜੇਗ ਦਿਸਾ ਟਿਦਸਾ ਹੈ
ਅਉਰ ਸੁ ਕਾਲ ਸਭੈ ਬਮਿਕਾਲ ਫੇਵੇਕ ਹੀ ਕਾਲ-ਅਕਾਲ ਸਦਾ ਹੈ ।

Sw. 24. L. 4. The Vedas and the Books mention gods and prophets to whom we might look for favour. The Guru says that he discards such mysterious writings and puts his trust in the Creator alone.

Sw. 25. L. 3. You had opportunities of doing good, but leaving that you indulged in evil deeds, and instead of winning respect gained dishonour. Mounting an ass is considered dishonourable in this country.

Sw. 26. L. असबास = S. अस्ति + आसः :=
lit. an abode of bones; a tomb.

Sw. 27. L. 1. Yogins are a sect of ascetics who wear big rings in their ears. Gorakh was their founder. Dattatraiya was the founder of a sect of Sanyasins.

L. 4. The meaning is that all sects claim to be in the sole possession of the religion of God, but not withstanding are ignorant of some of the commonest facts of spiritual life. The most glaring defect in the days of the Gurus was obstinate intolerance of one sect towards another. This baneful defect has not even now vanished from this country.

Sw. 28. True spiritual life consists in serving others and giving to them what we have. The Guru condemns the worldly attitude of the religious sects of those days. They tried to snatch the worldly belongings of the novices, as many do even now a days, and did not try to impart any truth to them. Masand. The fifth Guru had appointed men, called masands, to gather tithes from the Sikhs for the national treasury. Gradually they began to pose themselves as Gurus and were turned into hateful oppressors in the end. These tyrants were severely punished by the tenth Guru, because in the garb of the Sikhs they looted their own brethren.

29. 4. They will not wait till morning even. When they have finished their plunder they will run away most unceremoniously.

Sw. 30. L. 1. This artifice is resorted to even now a days. A drop of oil put in the eye will make it red and moist, and thus give it an appearance of sleeplessness, deep devotion and bitter repentance.

L. 2. It is a sad truth that men professing to be the teachers of religion distinguish between the rich and the poor of their flock. The rich and the poor are alike in the sight of the Lord and hence must have the same position in the eyes of His prophets.

Sw. 31. L. 1. In a posture of meditation men generally shut their eyes.

But if it is merely a show, it is often compared to the attitude of a heron intent upon catching a fish. As soon as the tiny creature is within reach, the bird soon relinquishes his thoughtful posture and with one clutch swallows it off. Similarly the hypocrites wait for a wealthy disciple and as soon as they have got one they prey upon him.

- L. 2. In the Sikh religion bowing to the feet of a good man to express humility is strictly enjoined; but the Guru points out that a huntsman also lowers his head, not with a view to show his humility, but to make his aim more sure. Outward confessions without sincerity of heart count for nothing.

The fixed gaze of a cat before pouncing upon his prey.

- Sw. 32. These lines are addressed to the leader of a sect, and bear the soundest advice. Men, covet to have a number of followers, hence begin to minister to their whims. The Guru says in the words of Christ "what availeth a man if he gaineth the whole world but loseth his own soul." It is the practice of truth and not the number of disciples that will stand in any stead before the Lord God.

The force of this stanza could not be adequately brought out in the translation. The Guru dwells in the most touching terms on the dying moments of a person, when everybody whom he loved in this world, leaves him alone to appear before God and get the reward of his actions. In the superstitious dread of the dead body even the wife hesitates to touch his beloved husband, whom she so fondly embraced at one time. In this hot coun'try a corpse could not be safely kept for a long time. So everyone who comes to attend the funeral always exhorts to make haste in cremation, lest the body may become putrid. Very few moments are given to him to lie in the house which he considered his own, all the possessions pass to others. Hence says the Guru "Keep that moment of death in view when all will desert you and you shall go alone to bear the punishment of the evil deeds, committed for the service of persons, who are unable to help ."
